Past Life Regression

London College Of Clinical Hypnosis, UK

Have you ever had a dream about a life that you could not possibly have led? When I was a teenager I had a dream that was unusually realistic: indeed it was so vivid it felt absolutely real. In the dream I was a soldier in the trenches of World War I. As I charged, a bullet to the stomach felled me and I died in the mud - I will spare you the graphic details of the vivid experience of death. Thus started a life long interest in the idea of past lives.

When I first experienced a formal hypnotic past life regression, during my training with the LCCH, it proved to be one of the most profound experiences of my life. Over the years since I have explored a number of esoteric concepts; I have encountered spirit guides and seen my own soul, but the one topic I have returned to again and again is the concept of past lives.

I have explored a number of past lives within my self and facilitated hundreds of such experiences in others, not to mention teaching innumerable therapists the techniques of safe and effective past life work. In addition I have worked with Life Between Life (LBL) practitioners and facilitated future life orientations and death transitions.

Whatever your personal feelings about past lives, there is no denying that past life work is one of the most fascinating areas of therapy. As it often produces some of the most dramatic reversals in the presenting problem, a good working knowledge of the techniques is an essential for any clinical hypnotist.

Matthew Krouwel has been a practicing clinical hypnotist for nearly a decade and has tutored and lectured for the LCCH for most of his career. He is currently working on a "Self-help Novel" around the esoteric elements of therapy, in particular past life regression.
